THE NHS AT 70

THE NHS...

- has a budget of £114 billion in 2018/19
- employs 1.2 million people
- manages 23.8 million A&E attendances and over 6 million emergency admissions per year
- responds to an average of 675,000 incidents per month through the ambulance service
- provides mental health care to over 1 million adults at any one point in time
- has around 100 million contacts in community services per year
- treats more than 1.4 million patients and service users every 24 hours
- provides care to over 3 million patients and service users every 24 hours
- responds to around 675,000 incidents per month through the ambulance service
- manages 23.8 million A&E attendances and over 6 million emergency admissions per year
- employs 1.2 million people
- has a budget of £114 billion in 2018/19

THE STATE OF THE NHS PROVIDER SECTOR

Demand is growing and trusts are seeing more people than ever before, but existing care models don’t meet today’s needs.

Productivity levels are high, but serious financial pressures persist.

The NHS continues to outstrip UK levels of productivity, delivering improvements of 1.2% over 2017/18, however:

- The trust sector ended 2017/18 with a deficit of nearly £1bn
- In 2016/17 the NHS in England had a total of £3.2bn in backlogs of maintenance
- The NHS would need to spend £1.8bn over three years to clear the waiting list and £350m extra a year to keep up with additional demand

NHS trusts are racing to keep up with demand.

- The 92% 18-week referral to treatment (RTT) target was last met in February 2016
- The 95% 4-hour A&E target was last met in July 2015
- The 85% 62-day cancer referral to treatment target was last met in December 2015
- In 2017, 38% of the workforce have felt unwell in the last 12 months due to work-related stress

Workforce is a major concern.

- 66% of trust leaders say workforce is the most pressing challenge to delivering high-quality care for patients
- 42% of trust leaders feel Brexit will have a negative impact on their workforce
- Nationally, the vacancy rate is nearly 12% for nurses and over 9% for doctors
- In 2017, 38% of the workforce have felt unwell in the last 12 months due to work-related stress

The NHS RESPONSE

NHS trusts are working hard to increase productivity and transform services as the NHS moves towards integrated health and care systems.

The ten-year plan for the NHS, underpinned by the new financial settlement and aligned with the social care green paper, provides a pivotal opportunity for local and national health and care organisations to come together and develop a shared, patient-focused ambition for the future.
The new funding settlement provides the NHS with a 3.4% average annual real terms increase over the next five years. The NHS has been tasked with producing a long-term plan in return for the increase in funding, outlining how the service intends to deliver major improvements. This is a significant opportunity for the health service.

OUR VIEW

- The need for a renewed long-term plan for the NHS is a helpful recognition that the NHS needs significantly more money. But we need to be realistic about what that uplift can deliver given the challenges facing the service.
- Despite being under pressure on all fronts over the last few years, NHS trusts have maintained or improved quality of care, become significantly more efficient and pioneered new models of care in local systems. Even so, the last four years have shown that setting trusts an unrealistic task locks them into a debilitating cycle of failure where they can't meet financial and operational targets, irrespective of how hard their frontline staff work.
- The plan offers the potential to set a day-to-day operational and financial task that the vast majority of trusts can actually deliver so the sector as a whole can return to being successful.
- Given that the 3.4% average annual increase to the NHS budget falls short of what independent experts say is needed, there will still be hard choices to make about priorities. Funding for public health, social care and training are not included in the uplift and have not been confirmed.

NHS PROVIDERS’ FIVE TESTS FOR THE PLAN

1. The plan is centred around patients, service users, carers and families
   - The plan is designed and developed in partnership with people who use the NHS and staff delivering care.
   - The plan is focused on the outcomes that matter to people and tailors care to their needs and goals, seeking to improve the way people experience and interact with health and care services.

2. The plan is realistic and deliverable
   - The expectations set out in the plan reflect the comprehensive and high-quality care the NHS should deliver to patients and service users every day.
   - A holistic view of care is taken across the primary, community, secondary and social care sectors.
   - Performance standards are fully funded, taking account of workforce challenges, and are deliverable within the timeframe required.
   - The vast majority of trusts, performing well, can sustainably deliver what is asked of them.

3. The plan is underpinned by a credible workforce strategy
   - The plan needs to help make the NHS a great place to work.
   - Demands on staff should be reasonable, with NHS staff given an achievable service delivery and performance task in their day-to-day jobs.
   - We need to ensure that we have the right staff, in number and skill mix, in the right place at the right time, with staff appropriately rewarded, valued and supported.

4. The plan lays the groundwork for a transformed, sustainable, high-performing service
   - The plan strikes the right balance between recovering short-term performance and long-term transformation, recognizing that the existing model of providing services is no longer sustainable.
   - The NHS is supported to make long-term investment decisions which balance the need to transform, deliver high quality services and achieve appropriate productivity and efficiency gains.

5. The plan supports local good governance, autonomy and accountability
   - The plan recognises that NHS delivery takes place at the frontline, and cannot be dictated from the centre.
   - From this flows recognition of the importance of NHS trust boards working within strong local health and care systems, coupled with responsiveness to the views and needs of staff and communities, respect for good governance, and legal decision making.

For data sources, please visit www.nhsproviders.org